On the question of attribution, the Congressional Joint Committee on Printing has promulgated regulations which are applicable to all Government printing. Regulation 37 states in part that "all documents and publications printed at Government expense shall have printed thereon the name of the branch, bureau, department, or office of the Government issuing the same." In a narrow sense, the word "issuing" could be interpreted to mean "printing"; however, in the context of the regulation it appears that the word "issuing" means "originating." Therefore, any publication printed or caused to be printed by the Agency must be attributed to the Central Intelligence Agency. However, because the regulation does not specify that a department or agency must be shown it appears that the use of [redacted]
